New York Farm Bureau Foundation for Agricultural Education, Inc.

Organized in 1997, The Foundation mission to inform and educate all New Yorkers is being carried out through many diverse projects. Our goal to raise the level of public awareness and understanding about agriculture will serve to alleviate misunderstandings that can manifest themselves as legislative proposals, unnecessary upheaval within the food system, superfluous regulations, excess costs, and a breakdown within the infrastructure of our communities throughout the state. An understanding will allow the general public to make "informed" choices.

Agriculture supplies our food and fiber, decorates our homes and communities, plus provides breathtaking landscapes. Agriculture represents a resilient thread in the quilt work of our lives. Understanding is the key to positive progress for one and all.

Upon request, information about NYFBFAE's activities and programs will be provided.
